

QUALITY POLICY

New Rubber Srl is specialized in the production of technical articles in elastomer, exclusively developed on specific customer demand. Quality is the fundamental value on which the development of the relationship with customers has always been based.

In order to maintain our high standards, evolve according to customer's need and consolidate the position of the company on the market, New Rubber has chosen to adopt a quality system based on the UNI EN ISO 9001: 2015 standard.

The high level of specialization of the company directed towards the development of components for food contact, has dictated the choice to homologate the entire production system according to the EC 2023: 2006 European standard. This protocol, approved and monitored by a third-party certification entity, ensures the total compliance of these products to the European standards and to a correct guideline for compliance to other International standards.

The Management promotes the culture of Quality not only within its own organization, but also by involving every single component of the supply chain, in terms of service and product, also in respect of the environment and the safety.

The company's objectives related to Quality are :

- Working constantly for continuous improvement of the quality of products and services always by granting total professionalism
- Focusing on customer's need, consolidating relationships and collaborating constantly
- Consolidating and promoting the image of the company maintaining high standards and competitiveness
- Having effective supervision on future market development opportunities

For the consolidation of these objectives, New Rubber Srl has defined the following Quality Policy:

- Maintaining the quality system according to UNI EN ISO 9001: 2015 and, specifically, the system based on the EC 2023: 2006 standard for food contact
- Improving the skills and the involvement of the Human Resources through training programs, promoting participation and sharing of Quality objectives
- Constantly monitor the compliance with current regulations and company procedures
- Ensuring the compliance with qualitative, quantitative and temporal values in accordance with the contractual requirements
- Consolidating the partnerships at key points in the supply chain

Only the methodical application of the defined means, and the involvement of all the people in the organization, can lead to the achievement of the objectives, and allow the company system to face new challenges.

Environment and safety :

The awareness about applying firmly the rules and promoting the necessary activities, as well as ensuring the satisfaction of the required requisites, confirms the commitment of the entire staff in maintaining an efficient system for carrying out the work in a safe environment, minimizing the risks of injuries, accidents and exposure to health hazards.

The same commitment is directed towards the environment, through constant efforts to reduce both environmental and noise pollution, paying due attention to the possibility of recycling materials and minimizing waste, using the energy sources and the water resources, in full compliance to the national and the local regulations.
